Is towing covered?

No, since towing and travel charges are not considered to be Parts or Labor, these items are not covered. However, as part of our claims assistance through Arrow Action Service, we can help you make these arrangements.

Are wear items such as clutch and brake shoes covered under my warranty?

No, but wear items should have been inspected and replaced (if necessary) as part of our reconditioning program.

If I have Arrow add a lift axle to my truck, is it covered under warranty?

Modifications added to a truck (such as PTOs, lift axles etc.) are not covered under warranty.

Does the manufacturer's warranty supercede our 30 day warranty?

Yes. Any existing OEM or purchased aftermarket warranty will override this 30-day coverage.

My truck broke down and I had it repaired. Will you now reimburse me for those warrantable repairs?

No. If you fail to receive authorization from Arrow before you have repairs made, (even if they would have been covered under the warranty), Arrow will not reimburse you for repairs. Authorization must be received prior to repairs being made. Failure to call before repair is started voids coverage of the specific failure.

Will Arrow provide me a truck to use while mine is being repaired?

No, Arrow is not responsible for a rental, inconvenience, loss of time, commercial loss or consequential damages. However, with the assistance of Arrow Action Service, we can help minimize your downtime and assist with other arrangements.

Are you going to pay downtime expenses?

No, but as stated above, we will help minimize your downtime as much as possible.

Who do I call if I have a failure?

Call your Arrow sales representative from whom you purchased your truck. If the sales associate is not available, contact the Branch Manager. See your warranty contract for further details.

How will I know if my failure and the repairs I need are covered under warranty?

Upon completion of diagnosis by an authorized facility, either your salesperson or the branch manager will notify you.

When does my 30-day warranty take effect?

You will find the start date on page two of your warranty contract. That date should coincide with the day you took delivery of your vehicle. Note: This date may vary from your invoice purchase date.
